Fritz Reuter

The South-Wellington Coin Society had their annual fall display days at Stone Road Mall in Guelph on September 17-18th, 2011, to generate momentum for their upcoming October 1st coin show, and to drive for new members. As always, the tables were filled with an interesting variety of numismatic items, sculptures, and art. Once again Anton Pavlis intrigued me with something I had not seen before. This time it was "REUTER GELDS". German poet and novelist Fritz Reuter (November 7, 1810 Stavenhagen - July 12, 1874) was one of the most prominent contributors to Lower German literature (Plattdeutsch).

Wee Medals

1809 Battle Of Corunna Napoleonic Wars is how to describe this small 15mm brass medalion. The front features an Angel and states 'By The Mercy Of God'. The back states 'January 16 Corunna 1809'. The battle of Corunna refers to a battle of the Peninsular War. On January 16, 1809 a French Army under Marshall Soult attacked the British under Sir John Moore. The British had retreated across Northern Spain following the defeat of the Spanish and their allies in the campaign and were attempting to embark on ships and return to England. Napoleon led the forces to trap the English, but left to fight the Austrians when he realized that he would be unable to do so.

1896 Italy Victor Emmanuel III Wedding describes this small 28mm brass medal. The obverse features newlyweds Prince Victor Emmanuel and Princess Elena of Montenegro and states 'Elena Vittorio Emanuele'. The reverse features a Coat of Arms and a wreath and states 'Ricordo Alle Auguste Nozze 1896'.

1842 France Prince Ferdinand Philippe Memorial describes this small 24mm brass medal. The reverse states 'Souvenir De Deplorable Evenement Du 13 Juille 1842'. The obverse features a bust of Prince Ferdinand Philippe, the Duke Of Orleans, who died jumping from his runaway carriage, and states 'S.A.R.F. - Pre Lis-Cles Hri Duc D'Orleans'.

Some notgeld notes have "REUTERGELD" printed on them to honour Fritz Reuter. These REUTERGELD notes are a subset of the serienscheine category. The following 70 towns produced REUTERGELDs. These notes are located around the state of Mecklenburg. Each set consists of three pfennig notes of values 10pf, 25pf and 50pf. Thus a complete set consists of 210 different notes. However, there are slight colour variations in printing and paper, so each set should truly be seen as 6. All are fairly readily available. Sometimes the difference between the similar pieces are best seen under a light. One set appears 'matt'. The yellow EINE MARK note (above right), depicts Fritz Reuter, but is not part of the REUTERGELD set.

The 50pf piece of the set from Ribnitz, is anti-semitic in nature. It translates as:

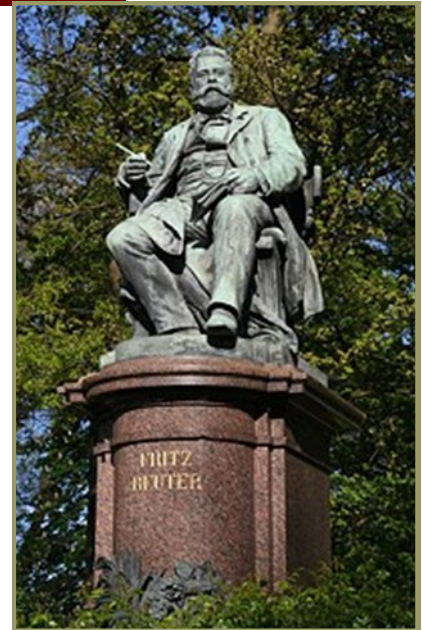

'For a free person and a healthy person, the fun doesn't have to be threaded in a net needle - a real packing needle has the same effect.'

Not far from the railway station, alongside the ramparts in Neubrandenburg, you can see the monument (pictured above right) Reuter who established himself as a freelance writer in Neubrandenburg in 1856. In the seven years that he spent in Neubrandenburg he wrote almost all his great works which brought him national fame and recognition as an author and poet. His Low German writings have been translated into almost every European language and into Japanese. Fritz Reuter felt connected to Neubrandenburg in a way unlike any other town. The Fritz Reuter monument was unveiled in 1893. And so the two-metre high bronze statue of "uns Fritzing" ("our pal Fritz") sits contemplating life and all the comings and goings around him. These are examples of stamps also issued in Germany to honour Reuter:

This is a German commemorative silver "Fritz Reuter" 36.17mm, 19.3gms, Kie-319. Bust of Reuter; Reverse: Oak tree, lyre and dates. Medal by K. Goetz. Matte finish, toned.

Reuter was born at Stavenhagen in Mecklenburg-Schwerin, a small country town where his father was the Mayor and Sheriff (Stadtrichter) and, in addition to his official duties, carried on the work of a farmer. He was educated at home by private tutors and subsequently Gymnasien in Mecklenburg-Strelitz and in Parchim. In 1831, Reuter began to attend lectures on jurisprudence at the University of Rostock, and in the following year went to the University of Jena. Here he was a member of the political students' club, or German Burschenschaft, and in 1833 was arrested in Berlin by the Prussian government and interned at Fort Silberberg in Silesia. Although the only charge which could be proved against him was that he had been seen wearing the club's colours, he was condemned to death for high treason. This sentence was commuted by King Frederick William III of Prussia to imprisonment for thirty years in a Prussian fortress. In 1838, through the personal intervention of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg, he was delivered over to the authorities of his native state, and he spent the next two years in the fortress of Dömitz, but was set free in 1840, when an amnesty was proclaimed after the accession of Frederick William IV to the Prussian throne.

Although Reuter was now thirty years of age, he went to Heidelberg to resume his legal studies, but was forced by his father to give them up when it was found that he paid little attention to his studies. After returning to Mecklenburg, he spent some time with his uncle, a minister at Jabel, and then began working on an estate, in 1842, as Strom (trainee). Finding out, upon his father's death in 1845, that he had been disinherited, he realized that acquiring an estate of his own was out of the question, and he began to write, first in High German, later, with more success, in Low German. In 1850 he settled as a private tutor in the little town of Treptow an der Tollense in Pomerania (today Altentreptow, Mecklenburg-Vorpommern), and was now able to marry Luise Kuntze, the daughter of a Mecklenburg pastor.

Reuter's first publication was a collection of miscellaneous poems, written in Low German, entitled Läuschen un Riemels (anecdotes and rhymes, 1853; a second collection followed in 1858). In 1856 Reuter left Treptow and established himself at Neubrandenburg, resolving to devote his whole time to literary work. In 1863 Reuter transferred his residence from Neubrandenburg to Eisenach, after having received an honorary doctorate from Rostock University, and here he died on 12 July 1874.

Controversial Silk Notgeld Example of Bielefelder Stoffgeld

This item was previously listed on eBay by a New York vendor. It was removed by eBay. It has been put back on eBay at $99. U.S. with this message: "Dear eBay Censorship Department: This item has been reviewed and approved by Trust & Safety. You suspended us for listing this item previously, but Trust & Safety reviewed the listing and re-instated us. We have changed the title and description to conform to your guidelines (Rare Judaica! 1922 Anti-U.S. / Semitic Mint Bank Note on Silk! with rare, one-of-a-kind political content!). If you have a problem with the listing, please call us before taking any action. Please look at the date of this bank note. It was not issued by the Nazi Party or Government, which came into power eleven years later. It does not bear any hateful or discriminatory symbols. It was issued by a German Municipality, not any type of group or organization. It has significant political, historic, educational and artistic merit. Finally, as a numismatic item in the Coins & Currency category, it is permitted to be sold regardless of markings, imagery or text as per your own published policies. Therefore, please do not cancel the listing. Do not breach your own stated policies. Thank you."

The site claims: "In 1922, Germany lay in economic ruins. Its defeat in World War I and the financial reparations imposed upon it by the Allies in the Treaty of Versailles proved devastating to the populace. The bitterness that took root during this era facilitated Hitler's rise to power on his promises to restore Germany's past greatness. This 500 Mark bank note falls under the general rubric of Notgeld (Depression scrip issued by German Municipalities right after World War I. As such, it is among the rarest, largest, most artistic and most unusual of Notgeld currency. but it is much more than that. In our opinion, it's the single most dramatic and historic German financial collectible of the early 20th Century, for the following reasons: 1. It is hand-crafted entirely in SILK!!...a pre-eminent example of 'Bielefelder Stoffgeld' - fabric Notgeld currency introduced and perfected by the City of Bielefeld, Germany's sewing capital (as well as an early automotive and bicycle manufacturing center!). Bielefeld remains famous for this unique and ingenious form of money to this very day. 2. It is one of the most colourful and best designed pieces of Notgeld ever created, with bold art deco patterns in bright red, gold, blue and white. 3. The content of its imagery is positively mind-boggling from a political, cultural, historical and economic perspective. 4. The central obverse panel shows a depraved naked woman 'suckling' money bags of ever-increasing value at her breast, as crazed speculators react with gleeful greed. The inscription reads 'We love you, oh great bourse!' and refers to a relevant bible passage. 5. The panel at the left shows a hook-nosed figure rubbing his hands together as he looks toward the woman, who seems to be staring intently back at him. 6. The panel at the right shows a top-hatted caricature of Woodrow Wilson before a U.S. Flag clutching his beloved 'Dollar Sack' with 'WILSON 1918' and numerous biblical passages inscribed around it. Ironically, the outer borders plug Bielefeld's own capitalist aspirations with advertisements for Duerkopf (durable pistons) and its various other industries and products. 7. The reverse is no less amazing in its commentary on the life and times of postwar Germany. The left panel shows the dizzying climb in the value of the Dollar against the Deutsche Mark (4,20 in 1914 to 4,650 in 1922!!!). The right panel shows the comparably irrational spike in the cost of an egg from 4 Pfennigs in 1914 to 30 Marks in 1922 - this situation would grow only more dismal in the future, as Germany veered into hyper-inflation. 8. The central panel shows Germany and Austria helplessly prone in the foreground as naked figures dance around a 'Golden Calf' and countless bank notes of ever-increasing denominations fly wildly about, flung into circulation by a black figure straddling the apex of 2 poles before an ominous red and black sky. 9. Several poems flank these inflammatory images, one of which reads 'When all walks of mankind dance at the feet of the Golden Calf, hold fast, for in the end you have only yourself in life.' 10. We can think of no other collectible with a more poignant view of this period in history, or that is more visually and intellectually engaging. The fact that it remains in mint uncirculated condition is yet a further reason to consider this magnificent silk bank note. This bill may have a tiny round treasury stamp in the lower left corner, which adds to its collector value."

[There were two main types of inflationary banknote printed. Standard Reichsbank notes, and what is known as notgeld (a German word meaning "emergency money"). The Reichsbank notes were issued by the central bank in Berlin, while notgeld was printed by city banks, small towns, all manner of public bodies, the German railway departments and even private companies. The good thing about collecting German money from this period is that while some notes can be priced into the thousands of dollars, you can still pick up many of the commonest Reichsbank notes in pristine condition for just a few dollars.]

Bielefeld Linen Cloth Notgeld (from Coin Talk)

In small black type around border:

Left: HOLSTE'S BIELEFELDER-STÄRKE / Right: BIELEFELDER-LEINEN

--> refers to the material (starch and cloth)
DRUCK: E. GUNDLACH A.G. BIELEFELD. - GESETZLICH GESCHÜTZT D.G.M.

--> the printer and copyright notice

--> The Stadtparkasse (savings bank) Bielefeld is to pay against this note (Platzanweisung is an odd word IMO ...) from our assets to the bearer

--> 30 Prussian soldiers/warriors led the Victory Goddess back to Berlin

Red Man: VIVAT ES LEBE FRAU (?) CHRISTINE SCHILDERMANN DIENSTMÄDCHEN IN BIELEFELD

--> Vivat, long live Ms Christine Schildermann, maid (home help) in Bielefeld (no idea who that is)

Blue Horse: 6 WAGEN PASSIERTEN MIT FRANZ (ösischen) FUHRLEUTEN AM 30. MAI 1814 DEN GEHRENBURG

--> 6 cars (probably horse drawn vehicles) passed, with French coachmen, on 30 May 1814 the Gehrenburg

Blue Man: WAS TYRANNEI GERAUBT DAS SCHENKTEST DU UNS WIEDER! REMPEL PROREKTOR

--> What tyranny stole, you gave us back! Rempel Prorektor (could be somebody's name and title)

Large text bordering inner color fields:

ZUR 700JÄHRIGEN 1221-1921 JUBILÄUMSFEIER

DER STADT BIELEFELD AM 15 JULI 1921

--> To the 700 year 1221-1921 jubilee celebration of the city of Bielefeld on 15 July 1921

--> refers to Bielefeld cloth again, Ravensberg is the name of the region

Around 25 Mark Right: BEWERTE MIT HURRA / HOCH LEB GERMANIA

--> Assess with hooray / Long (lit. high) live Germania

On the left tower: DEUTSCHE TREUE DENK AN DEN 20 MAI 1814 IN BIELEFELD

--> German loyalty - think of the 20 May 1814 in Bielefeld

On the right tower: HOFFNUNGSVOLLES ZUKUNFTSGLÜCK SEI DEUTSCHLANDS LOS

--> Hopeful future luck be Germany's lot (sounds about as strange in German as it sounds in English ...)

That note apparently combines two themes: First, the 700 year jubilee of the city of Bielefeld in 1921, and the "repatriation" of the Quadriga, a statue on top of the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin. In 1806 the Quadriga was brought from Berlin to Paris by the French army; in 1814 the Prussian army brought it back to Berlin.
